

CARLISLE'S
RDC
ROOFING DESIGN CONFERENCE

TO: Architects, Specifiers, & Building Owners
FROM: Carlisle SynTec Incorporated and Coastal Specified Products
RE: Carlisle Roofing Design Conference

Carlisle SynTec Incorporated and Coastal Specified Products, cordially invites you and the associates of your firm to attend a joint Design Program. This advanced program is designed for architects, roofing consultants and specification writers, field observers, roofing inspectors, property managers and asset management groups.

The four-hour session will include topics ranging from industry issues, such as enhanced roof system design options and garden assemblies to trends within the market including ANSI/SPRI ES-1 for metal edging, ASCE 7, International Building Code, and ASHRAE, as well as roof system warranties. In addition, roof assembly energy performance will be discussed, including a complete energy analysis comparing different roof assemblies, insulation types, fastening methods, and membrane color. The conference will focus on the role single-ply membrane plays in today's roofing market and its impact on tomorrow's roof system performance.

Participants who are AIA members can receive continuing education credit. This four-hour program is registered with the AIA Continuing Education System (AIA/CES). An AIA member will receive 1 learning unit/ Health, Safety and Welfare (HSW) contact hour per each seminar hour (4 hour program = 4 Learning Units/HSW contact hours). Carlisle will report these directly to the AIA/CES for those attendees who provide their AIA registration number.

The Carlisle Roofing Design Conference is also an approved program by RCI for continuing education credits. Participants will receive 1 CEH (Continuing Education Hours) per each seminar hour (4 CEH's for a 4-hour program).

The Conference will be held on Wednesday, April 21, 2010 at:
